

Craps Variants

As with most casino games, there are a number of different craps variants available for players to try out. Most of them stick fairly closely to the standard rules of craps, but they are worth discussing briefly so that you know your options.

New York Craps

As you might guess from the name, this variant of craps rules is popular on the east coast of the United States. Come, don't come and place bets are not allowed. True odds are given on all bets, but with a 5% commission across the board.

Simplified Craps

If you think that the rules of craps are too difficult, then this is the variant for you. The shooter only throws one roll per turn. Two, three, four, 11 and 12 result in a win, while all other numbers lose.

Crapless Craps

This version removes the possibility of rolling craps and losing in the come out roll. However, this does not actually make the game more favourable for the player. Instead, the house edge is increased by removing the 11 as a winning result.

High Point Craps

This variation takes quite a turn away from the standard craps game rules. In the come out roll, if the player rolls a two or a three, this is ignored and they roll again. If they roll an 11 or 12, they win. Any other number becomes the point number. To win, the player must then roll a higher than this point number.

Die Rich Craps

This craps variant is played using only one die. A six equals a win, while a one is a loss. The other numbers become point numbers if rolled. On subsequent rolls, the player tries to roll the point number before a one.
